Judge Tourgee,
Gadsden, Ala.

Has the possibility of the insanity of Henry Smith, the Paris-murderer, been publicly discussed? In reading the notice of the assassination of Carter Harrison, the second time, which me to my eyes is "probably by an insane man" When after such words accompany the account by an atrocious deed done by a white man? When an entire community was excited on the ground of insanity for the preparation of the murder, would it not be well to see if the same disease might not have afflicted the colored man?

We had a student from Paris who tells there are good reasons for thinking Smith is sane. He states

It is an examination of the...
made after the execution... that it is...
an intelligent colored man... that...
could participate...
I mean to be a "stander" to these people to the extent of my ability, which now is small. Your paper, which I look upon as a certainty, will cause many more to take the same stand.
I will try and aid the cause by getting as many subscribers as possible. If you see any other way in which I could be of use, please let me know.

Yours truly,

Samuel Sander,
