Dear Sir: Have just returned from our farm in the southern part ^{of the State} and found your letter of May 17th. I thank you, very much.

I pined Temple, but did not learn as much of him, it seems, as you did. I was about twenty-two then and was already meeting with some success in my literary work, and Temple was a new subject to me.

You will be pleased to know that all your works are very much liked here: several copies of some of them being constantly in use, and several times replaced in the libraries here: Murvale Eastman is doing a good work. Respectfully Chester Wood.
