My dear Mrs. Tourgée:

I have just received your letter, dated the ninth. I have looked at the handkerchiefs, and they range from twenty-five, fifty, seventy-five, and a dollar for the embroidered ones; the hem-stitched being also the same prices.

My idea for a plain handkerchief, is the hem-stitched for I think, they are always more satisfactory for general use.

I feel very sorry to hear, that Katie has been so sick. I was over in New York, some few days since. Had I known she was there, I would most certainly have gone to see her. I may go over some day this week and if so, will call.

Regret very much to learn that Miss Millie has been so ill. Give her my best love and tell her I am very, very sorry and hope that she will soon be herself once more.

You surely have had a great deal of trouble and sickness. I sympathize with you and wish I could help you in some way as I have not forgotten how very kind you all were to me when I was sick some years ago

With much love and good wishes I am

Truly yours
