My Dr. Judge:—

My Souvenirs of the 105th O.V.I. have some how all disappeared and I am compelled to invest another dollar, which you will (I hope) find inclosed in the 105th Souvenirs. Please send them to me here.

By the way you fail to notice in the itinerary the Battle of Jonesboro, in which we lost several men on Sept 1st/864

You have it "In line of battle all day" We were marching around that day and were in supporting line about Sundown when the rebels intrenchments were taken.

I remember distinctly that the firing was very sharp but we were slightly protected and got off pretty well.

Atlanta was captured at Jonesboro, in the sense that our victory there left Hood Nothing else except to get out as quickly as possible.—

Yours truly
