Dear Miss Lenox:

Mr Dickens came in this morning to show me a copy of Household Words & I find that you mention that the Chimes would be glad to have my story for the June publication. I am glad that it has reached you safely & that the Judge is to be at Mr Hoyt's at 8 o'clock. I will be glad to make the arrangement with him for anything I can do in the literary line.

I am sure you refer to the Misses Nicholson of Virginia. They have just visited the Hoyts, & since they left Virginia, I have only seen the young ladies. That I have left that I could resume my visit & finish mine. Mrs H believe I could do a reasonable amount of good work if I could be assured I might to pay my way until relieved from the Journal drudgery in which I have now been engaged for a year. I had got somewhat in debt before I got able to do anything & have never since got out. The misfortune of not being entirely even with the world & has so pressed me, and recently, to make the last three payments, [illegible]

With kindest regards,

Yours sincerely
