Private Letter

Chicago Ill.
Oct 24. 1896.

Judge Pound.
Mayville N.Y.

My dear friend.

Your letter in reply to one written in Oct received not long since - and I am very sorry, indeed, that I put you to any inconvenience and I hope that you will make allowance for any apparent inconsistencies - I am sure you will when you know all, and the great struggle I am in.

I go to Louisville to day to settle business due March first - result of Mothers death, and will write you particulars soon, which I could not state before, then You can better decide whether you can afford to help me. Please watch for the letter as it is for you only!

Faithfully Yours &c J. J. Robinson
