Dear Sir: Learning from the public prints that you have been appointed Consul at Bordeaux, I take the liberty of applying for the position of vice-consul under you. Briefly, I am a graduate of the class of Ninety-nine - a graduate of Yale Univ'y, although I have had many years successful business experience in New York City, where my tastes have always been rather literary than mercantile. Being fond of life abroad (I have travelled extensively through Europe on several occasions) I am willing to give you the full benefit of the fact that is in me in the way of work for a very moderate compensation. If course, I can furnish unquestionable references as to character & ability & if you so desire, will arrange for an interview. so that you may be able to form some idea of my personality. which I assure you is that of a gentleman & man of the world. trusting that you will pardon me for trespassing upon your time, I am.

Respectfully yours

Frank Runyon Gallahyn.
