My dear Wife:

Arrived at 7.30. went out to Ravenswood: back at 10.30; Entertainment at 11: returned to hotel at 2 or and am just through with my luncheon. Am to go to dine with Bushey at six; stay over night and leave here at 8 pm tomorrow; arriving in Washington about 5 or — on Thursday. This is the outline of what is and is to be. Now for details.

Grace and Archie met me at the station. Grace went out home with me and took me out to a boarding-house for breakfast. Warren asked very

I walked out to breakfast there — that is at dinner — and Grace promptly answered "Because he will get a better breakfast at Mrs. Ingersoll's." which, if true, I am truly grateful to her for insisting upon.

I staid with Mrs until 10 o'clock. She is not able to sit up at all. Has a hard cold and has the old pain in her liver; but is bright and cheerful. The house is small; rooms small, cluttered — dark. Her bedroom is just large enough for a bed, washstand and a small bureau, on one side of it: on the other there is just room for a chair between bed and wall. The two sitting rooms — one of which I suppose is a bedroom at night — are each about as large as your writing room at home — not any larger. It is all that our house is not. The yard is enclosed and commonplace. I think she is getting over the glamour of the change and wishes she were back. She ch him. Don't let him get off on anything else."

So I left and, until he said that he would talk with Busbey and see if there was any way to keep the matter out.

Both men are looking very well indeed: never saw Busbey looking so well. He is fleshy and his beard as white as snow. Lots of people (whom Busbey had let know I was coming) were waiting to see me.

Nixon says that McKinley, despite the fact that Kohlsaat became his trustee, stands by asked all about the office; how the house looked and seemed to wish she had not come away. However, her eyes are clear, she seemed cheerful and is, I think fairly well content.

I came in to see Nixon and talked to him with some interruptions until 2 oc.

Nothing is decided. Bushey is to come for me at 5 oc and Nixon is to talk things over with him. He — Bushey — is very anxious. He says nothing, but his anxiety is evident.

Nixon says he has still a great burthen to pull through. He will do it he says, but he had to pay Holbrook $1400.000. and took it just as the town came in Chicago affairs. He gave me a full history of matters and I think, wanted to do so in order to have me approve him. I was interrupted several times and then, and Bushey would say, "Have you got through?" Each hair and the Inter Ocean, and declares that he owes his popularity at the west more to the Inter-Ocean than to any ten other papers - and does such back down a hair.

The story of McKinley's telling Platt he was going to appoint me and would like to have him endorse me, he says, got out in Washington and was the cause of a good deal of fun.

It luckily ran much of Deems. Both she and Willie are foamed themselves as very glad we had got rid of Mrs Plummers. They she made herself very offensive by her egotism and they were afraid she would have made herself an ~~ass~~ bore after we were gone.

Susan has just called me on the telephone to say she has sold my ticket and got me a Washington ticket over the B & O. for tomorrow at three o'clock.

Home to Susie. The dear brave child, I am afraid she will be awful homesick.
She must have some one to stay with her and take her meals at Hammonds and have a good time. I am going to write to Gen. Porter about her as soon as I get to Washington. Remember me to Peter. I will try and write him tomorrow but want him to be sure and remember & did not seem to run away without shaking his hand. I wish him to feel that I think there is no better man nor better friend in Mayville, than he.

I hope it is such as he with you as here and that you will not work yourself out before going on to new work,

Yours,
