The Judge had taken the glycerophosphate always threw him into such a spasm of pain and to divert him from it sat on the edge of the bed and took his hand, which he was gripping the coverlet with, and asked, as the result of a train of thought — "Father, what is the sum of human greatness?" The grimace of pain left his face and he said, promptly "To have enough to eat and drink and wear and to be content therewith."

"To be happy with what you've got, in other words, to Quail.

"Or if you haven't got it" he added. "To be a hog and content with your trough: or a philosopher and content with your dreams. The hog should be satisfied with the dreams, and the hog would despise the philosopher."

Papa was bringing up the rear one night and saw Mama running along the top of the rail fence, funny, long lithe, not chipmunk or squirrel - simply jungle and a little scared - he and Ina dug heads on off and they ran into a hollow fence rail. He stopped up the hole with a stone and counted the rail fence - 6 with crosses But saw in box. turn around hole, always counted them -

Papa's father one day in despair when he was 6 years old told him boy he was just too bad. His father didn't want to bring him up and him to bad influence - it was no use. He finally concluded to turn him off and bear him - took him. months night -, into woods away from the house, near to which they lived - and went away. Child
